Beginners Guide of How to Start a Truck Food Business Oct 06 2020 In my book, I will show you how I started my own successful food truck business while sharing with you all the research that I came across as I found out about how to begin this luscious line of work. I actually come with a pedigree for serving amazing food for a fee. My great-grandmother made a living selling her delicious fried chicken (of which, I use this secret family recipe even today) to train travelers who arrived or passed through our small town in Virginia. She would walk by the train with her tray of steaming hot fried chicken legs perched on her head and sell them through the windows of the rail car to the passengers. When I started my food truck, I decided to sell my great-grandma's same fried chicken recipe as a premier dish. I wrapped it with some traditional, yet now healthier, side dishes. Imagine being able to whip up those wonderful mashed potatoes or your signature mac and cheese for a living. When you own a food truck, you call the shots. You're the boss. You can decide your menu, your location, your brand, your image - all of which can be as outrageous or reserved as you'd like. In this book, I will take you through the entire process of starting a food truck business from startup to success. Once you're done reading this book, I am confident that you will be armed with the knowledge to launch your dream career. I will show you: How to plan for starting a food truck A short history of food trucks The pros and cons of the food truck business What you should consider when starting out including: Location Costs Permits and licenses How to obtain financing What licensing you'll need Food safety guidelines in this extraordinary mobile kitchen What supplies or equipment you could consider How to cost-effectively sourced ingredients How to develop your menu (which defines your brand, too) How to price your items How to create a business plan What the day in the life of a food truck owner looks like Some common business accounting tips How to hire and manage staff How to grow your business effectively Common pitfalls to avoid

After talking with her father, who drove for 25 years himself, she took the step and has been driving for 17 years. As an owner-operator, she ran a small business with just one truck. She learned how to dispatch and deal with brokers, shippers, receivers, and other drivers. How To Become a Truck Driver Mar 11 2021 Let's talk about the money, most truck drivers can expect to earn $30,000-$40,000 in their 1st year. I know some drivers who work as Solo drivers and decide to give up their apartments so they can stay in the truck all year long and save money. They still take days off from time to time, and stay with friends, family or rent a hotel for a few days so they can take a break. Once you have 6 months experience you may be able to find a job that pays more money. I've seen motivated drivers earning in the $60,000 range in their 1st year. The money is there to earn if you look for it. Too many drivers get complacent and they stay with the same company in the same position making low wages for years and years. Sometimes all you need to do to increase your income is switch positions within the company. If the company you work for doesn't offer anything that will take you to the next level then find another company that will. I know a Walmart driver who earns $100,000 year and he's home every night and weekend. Companies pay you in cents per mile (CPM) so the more mileage you drive the more you earn The bottom line is company drivers can make anywhere from $30,000 to around $100,000 per year. Stay away from company lease options, 99% of the time only the company does well with this type of position. They will make their lease program sound perfect, touting how you will be your own boss and make lots of money. Drivers often find themselves making just enough to cover the WEEKLY truck lease payment. If you want to truly be your own boss as a owner operator of your own truck then save up the money to buy a used truck cash or you may be able to find a 3rd party (not company sponsored) lease program. I have seen a couple of decent 3rd party lease programs, these will allow you to contract with any company you want. So if you're not making enough money with one company then you can easily switch to another. Owner operators can make anywhere from $50,000 - $250,000 per year. About the Expert I have been driving a truck full time for over 4 years at the time of this publishing. I have been a company driver for 3 of those years and an owner/operator for a bit over one. In the 4+ years that I've been driving I have spent one year driving most of the lower 48 states. I haven't made it up to North Carolina, and a few other states in the northeast but all of the others I have. For the last two years I have been truck driving with my team from Los Angeles to the Kansas City area and back. We did that twice a week. After doing that for about a year I was able to get a driving position working nights and being home every day. I did that for almost year. I left there because the company did a pathetic job of maintaining their equipment. I was afraid of getting stopped by law enforcement. So I left them and got my own truck to take care of. Now I am contracted with a carrier to move their freight and it works out a lot better. HowExpert publishes quick 'how to' guides on all topics from A to Z by everyday experts.
